Printing Stamps by Millions.

Few labor-saving machines are more ingenious in combining a number of operations, or more impressive in the amount of work they do, than the new stamp-printing presses of the United States Bureau of Printing and Engraving. Each press, with two operators, moistens, prints, gums and rolls a total of 4,000,000 postage stamps in an eight-hour day, states an article in Popular Mechanics. The perforations are made both lengthwise and across, both the roll and the punches being adjustable for position. One operator, in front, takes care of the unwinding roll and adjusts its path to the perforators by means of a screw. The other operator, at the rear, regulates the speed of the machine and inspects the finished work. Finally, the roll is cut into sheets of 400 stamps each.

Heartlessness.
"People came for miles to see me play 'Hamlet,'" said Mr. Stormington Barnes.
"Quite true," answered the heartless manager. "But you have no idea how many of them said the ride was the best part of the entertainment."

Foreign Legations Buy in Canada to Drink in Washington.

Burlington, Jan. 9.—That one and sometimes two large baggage cars of liquor and other intoxicating drinks are being shipped through Burlington per week from Canada to Washington is the information gained through authentic sources recently. The hard stuff is consigned to the members of foreign legations in Washington, where the only liquor in the United States can be purchased legally for beverage purposes.

The amount which is passing through this city alone is enormous and shows that either the foreigners can drink more than most persons or that they are generous entertainers to their friends. One small legation within a few days had 24 cases of one brand of Scotch shipped to it. This shipment of 288 quarts was followed within a few days by other shipments. The cars which are filled with intoxicants are all under the guard of at least two men. The cars are sealed and the guards remain inside. The lesser shipments are bound in heavy boxes girded with steel bands. These are as carefully checked up during their journey to Washington as is gold.

Windham County Milk Producers Sell Oak and Pine.

Brattleboro, Jan. 9.—Announcement was made Saturday of the sale of the timber on the so-called Bradley farm now owned by the Windham County Co-operative Milk Producers, Inc., of Cheshire, a suburb of Keene.

The timber is located on what is known as the pasture back of Warner Thomas' home. The sale comprises about 750,000 feet or more and is about equally divided between oak and pine. It is expected that the new owners will begin to cut off the timber about May 1.

This leaves for the Producers' organization about 40 acres of land on the flat adjoining the railroad, all of which is in a good state of cultivation. There also is a plot of about four acres next to the highway, which probably will be sold later for building purposes.

The disposal of this timber at a substantial figure makes the investment of the Producers' association in the Bradley property an extremely good one.

ONCE I KISSED A WEE MAID.

Oh, once I kissed a wee maid beneath a lilac tree;
'Tis many a year ago now, and she was very fair,
But every heart is young, sir, that holds a memory,
And all the stars of April were shining in her hair.

The path that led across the hills kept calling to my feet,
And there was many a land to lure and many a distant sea;
Oh, many a lip was red, sir, and many a waist was held—
But once I kissed a wee maid beneath a lilac tree.

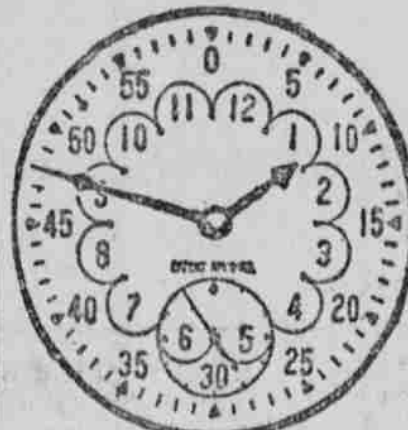

Not mine to make the loud name, the stately high success,
But life has tuned my old heart with many a melody;
Oh, I have had a man's share of dreams and happiness,
For once I kissed a wee maid beneath a lilac tree.

—Perrin Norman Lowrey, in the Saturday Evening Post.

Reform Which Seems to Be Eminently Sensible May Soon Come Into General Use.

WANTED TO BE QUITE SURE

Explorer Had Blundered Badly Twice, but at Last Got on Reasonably Safe Ground.

The newly returned African explorer found himself in a horridly tight corner at the first social function he attended. A scrappy-necked dame, of very uncertain age, bore down upon him effusively.

"Well, this is a pleasure, Mr. Biggame! Charmed to see you again, I'm sure! You remember me, of course?"

"Oh—er—yes, of course," returned the traveler, wrestling with his memory. "Delighted to see you. All the youngsters?"

"Youngsters?" gasped the antique one.

"Er—of—course—how is your family, I meant to say. Your husband, for instance."

"My—? Dear me, I never had a husband!"

"Hu, ha! No, no, of course not—only a joke on my part, you know," stammered the agitated explorer.

"I was referring to your brother. I'm sure you love him just as much as if he were your husband."

"But I never had a brother either!"

"Er—of course not. Merely a little pleasantry of mine—hu, ha! I meant to ask, how is your—your—by the way, did you ever have a mother?"
